

Forest Retreat - Witness the healing

From an early age, and more fervently since visiting the Australian Aborigines, I had a burning need to clarify myself. Along the way, I experienced a kind of return to 'factory settings', so to speak. This spiritual emptiness, this purity, attracted experiences that answered this silent questioning. I didn't know this then, but I know today, when I relive my story, that I always attract longings, which the Happening, through their realization, clarifies for me. Meditation of the Genius, Lesson of the Little Red Riding Hood, Surrender and others, try to portray the deceptiveness of personal doing and the involvement of me in Life's happening, which is flawlessly perfect. How do I know that? Simply... when I allow myself to be alone in nature, I just sigh with beauty, love and harmony that cannot come out of any imperfection, and in which the only shadow is my attempt to explain it.

How am I creating disharmony and drifting further and further away from Perfection, with the idea of personal doing, I can more easily see if I know that ego is an idea in my mind, placed in me by the way of thinking of the environment into which I am born. It's not mine. There is no I in Life. Life is all it is. There is nothing that can stand against Him. I and my Life are an invention. There is no I and there is no my Life, there is only One Life. Whatever I do comes from the consciousness of separateness and distances me from Life's gifts. It is One doing, without a person to take credit for, because the doing is realized through him.

The starting point from which we emerge in this world is set in such a way as to create the illusion of separateness. When we are born, we are given an ID number, an identity tied to the material aspect of me, I am a woman, I am Slovenian, I am white, I weigh so much... . Identification with the body is the beginning of separation, but it is maintained by organizing society in a way that encourages, praises and rewards personal merits, thereby adding other worldly acquisitions to the identity and strengthening the identity with external addings. All this has no value for Life, which is Love and Light. For Life, they have value only to the extent that It realizes Its Working and Giving through them.

In the same way that I regularly clean my body, apartment, car and other things, informational cleaning is equally embedded in the style of Life and I cannot call it an exercise or a technique, just naturalness. It notices the unwanted information on its own and naturally strives for a renewed harmony with Peace, which is why it always finds the opportunity and the will to continuously tune in with it. Where the naturalness is suffocated by the values of this world, the natural simply does not have a voice. I don't feel the need for spiritual care, only without understanding and without strength I reach more and more for supposed causes and solutions outside.

Information technology is a concept that we associate with programs and computers, servers and chips, and it is, like other words, polluted with an inanimate mentality. Information technology is an organic phenomenon, tainted on Earth by mechanical technology and human effort. In this drop, I want to look at the principle of organic information cleansing in order to understand what pollutes energy and what cleans it.

Quantum physics is a gift of Love to those of us who rely on the findings of others and devices rather than the honesty of personal experience. It encourages us to live Love for ourselves. It discovers that the universe is Alive and intelligent, a light interlacing of energy patterns formed by frequencies, of which Peace, with its unconditional love, sounds the highest. This gives me a completely different attitude towards myself.

This is wonderful, it is the path of spiritual science or scientific spirituality, where there are no mediators between me and Life. Genes, these magical light records of the Life Program, are fractal antennas that transmit and receive light information across the dimensions of time and space and communicate that time and space do not exist in Light Reality. What it is is a two-way flow, it is communication, it is cooperation, it is a relationship between units of Light in the only time that exists, in the now, and it is only possible for living things with a light core in them. This is the true meaning of spirituality, it is a direct relationship with the Light Field. (see Zero Point)

From this Field and Beyond, photons continuously arise and disappear to fill the template that the genetic record specifies. Consciousness holds this template together so it doesn't fall apart back into the Field. If there is disharmony in the body, informational cleansing is necessary in order to attract from the Field information that is more consistent with the Living Consciousness. This is the human potential that we are already stepping into individually to build on the old paradigm of being fragile, flawed and helpless victims of a world over which we have no control. We are soft technology that can make and use external things and devices, but we don't need them. The sooner I understand this, the sooner the draining of energy into the nothingness of the material illusion stops. Thus the energy remains in its natural position without my efforts. Effort, in this regard, is necessary to stop the ejection of energy from its natural position - peaceful Being.

This is the healing power of doing nothing, I read in the spirit. It does not convey that I am physically at rest, but that I am at rest in spirit, in energy, in thought, which is a tool for channeling power. This is what we were told in the beginning, 'You shall not eat the fruit of the tree of knowledge'. This is why humans so quickly lose the Life Force that could remain eternal, even in a body that is freed from conditioning by the actions of Unity Consciousness from the low-sounding physis. What a Beauty of Natural Technology! I have to clear the soul garden of the energy-wasting foreign chaff with which I create lack, illness and other distortions... and a healthy naturalness is revealed like a pearl in a slowly opening shell.

Everything has its time and we are here now, at a point where material manipulation cannot go further than where we are. A step further is only possible spiritually, so that everyone establishes a personal relationship with the Living Intelligence, which Lives us at this very moment, thereby giving us Consciousness, reason and body. Every organic form of Life is a light cell that absorbs the information in which it is immersed. It cannot but record what it experiences, because it is Alive. Every insignificant nuance of information is written into this body and is what it is.

There is no mistake in this, my body and behavior reveal me in every shade of energy that I realize..., giving in to lower passions, intemperance, lack of love, laziness..., as well as devotion to the Will of Love, in which I recognize the highest mission of the soul. Healing is about aligning my personal vibration with the vibration of Living Consciousness. Physical health is a side effect of this harmony.

Even if the body, in this hour of eternity, does not experience healing, the attitude towards it loses self-pity, I remain in acceptance and trust in the Will of Life. Certain inconsistencies with which I am burdened require trust until the last breath. I don't want to succumb to this last test, to make health conditional on the state of the body. I prefer to rise above with a material understanding of what I think health should be and surrender to Love without conditions.

Cleaning

Giving up is too strong a word, although information cleansing is about letting go of physical, mental, emotional and behavioral habits that I find out through experience that do not serve me well. These are dams in the flow of energy, or holes in the bubble of light, where energy either stagnates or drains away. In order for these dams to fall and these holes to be patched, without having the feeling that I am giving up anything, so that I do not fall into the trap of personal merit, peace of mind above all is an effective medicine. Why?

The thought that I have lost weight, that I have healed, that I have achieved..., arises in separation from God. It relies on its own efforts, it is hindered by a misunderstanding of the Oneness of Life, it is selfishness, it is violence, it is renunciation, it is the effort of the I that increases disharmony and lacks Life's sustainability. Mental turmoil will take over again at the first weakness and I will be worse off than before. Permanent or only healing comes from energetic purity in which everything that does not resonate with it naturally falls away. In this case, I have nothing but the willingness to take refuge in Peace or God.

Courage of heart is a divine seed in the soul that rocks when I have nothing left to lose. The greater the pressures of the unconscious, the faster I get here. Letting go of control is not passivity, laziness, apathetic surrender to fate... it is a conscious consent to the Will of Life, which I increasingly recognize as the Highest Love. That's why it's getting easier to say goodbye to my will, which brought me to where I don't want to be.

Being saturated with Peace heals me so that the need for external supports completely dries up, but they can't really heal me anyway because they don't have the height of the frequencies of Living. Thus the energy naturally remains with itself until it reaches a certain charge or torque of power to flow and join the Whole. The more harmonious the personal energy is with the energy of the Field, the cleaner the communication between them.

So I allow the healing to happen that I am the witness to the healing, not its manager. It is not easy to leave the protection of the outside, I cannot bluff the moment of maturity. As long as I still need the experience of ignorance, until then this world will be here as a mirror for me. Usually, I mature after lifelong disappointments that leave me hanging in the air, I've already tried the old, I don't know the new yet. This is the window through which the Will of Life can seize me.

That is why I am grateful to the so-called inconveniences and difficult people, without them I wouldn't recognize my own disharmony. They help me alleviate the fallacy of outwardly focused attention. This way I can finally stop, stop looking for culprits, stop dispersing energy, let go of control more and more and trust the Event and the Will of love more and more. In every situation I now recognize the Divine Perfection, which I do not judge or shape according to the straits of this thought.

When I walk, I don't think I'm walking, I'm just walking. If someone praises or criticizes this doing, it is one and the same to me, it does not change the quality of this doing, which is always divine, if I do not involve myself in it with personal merit and forget God, who is the only true worker, doer. What one thinks of it only shows his oblivion of it, and says nothing about me. When I'm driving, I'm (impersonal) driving, and if some awkwardness occurs and someone gets angry, it's just angering. It's neither good nor bad, he's not angry and he's not angry at me, it's just angering. I notice we don't have words to describe impersonal doing. It cannot touch me, there is no one to be angry with but God who does all things. But I can't and don't want to be angry with Him.

And I'm in trouble, if there's a lot of violence in me that wants to get out, but I don't have anyone to throw it in the face of. As long as I don't love myself and, because of that, I am full of anger against the world and people, I don't even want to hear about the perfection of the Happening. I prefer to think that someone else is to blame for my dissatisfaction, to justify my own ugliness. And so I spin and spin in an ever narrowing loop of self-destruction and announce that I don't want Life and Love. The sign that Life understands as 'Yes, I want You' is that I see Him in everything that happens.

* * * * *

Housekeeper